Jennifer Langdon receives certification in Emergency Nursing from the Emergency Nurses Association

(Hendersonville, N.C.) Jennifer Langdon, BSN, CEN, has received certification in Emergency Room Nursing from the Emergency Nurses Association.

Langdon has been with Pardee for five years where she works in the Emergency Department. She received her associate degree in nursing from Valencia Community College and her bachelor degree in nursing from the University of Central Florida.

The Emergency Nurses Association provides accredited continuing education in nursing by the American Nurses Credentialing Center's Commission on Accreditation. Certification in Emergency Nursing measures the superior knowledge of nursing pertinent to the specialty of the emergency care and must be renewed every five years to assure reflection of current emergency nursing practice.

Pardee's Emergency Department welcomes and serves anyone requiring medical attention. Patient-focused care and treatment are provided through the latest technologies including state-of-the-art trauma suites, a decontamination room, specialty rooms and private family consultation rooms. Pardee treats between 90 and 120 emergencies each day and is certified by state and federal licensing agencies.
